codethecity

ABERDEEN 2014

a full weekend of civic hacking over 21st & 22nd June
TO BE HELD IN THE MESTON BUILDING
UNIVERSITY OF ABERDEEN

Our cities are changing, life in our cities is changing. Access to services is one of the key benefits of locating in a city, but many services are difficult to access. Even finding a service can be a struggle.

We aim to fix that.

At codethecity you'll be part of a passionate group of volunteers building new tools and services to help people in your community access existing services and start new ones.

Who should come?

Despite the name, we don't just need coders - we need designers, writers, service providers, community members, and anyone interested in getting involved in improving our cities.

At Code the City we focus on some key areas:

> Achieving social good
> Improving local services
> Sharing skills and knowledge across disciplines
> Using and extending the open government data available to all
> Open sourcing new tools for others to use
> Quick delivery of real results

This is a free, fully catered event where coders, designers, and community members come together to help improve our city.

For full information, and to register your place please visit codethecity.org and follow us on twitter.com/codethecity

HTTP://CODETHECITY.ORG